

A script from

"Time For Change"

by Eddie James

- What This skit shows there is no specified formula for praying and that God desires a two-way conversation with us. Themes: Rebellion, Family, Repentance
- Who Tina
- When Present day
- Wear (Props) None
- Why Proverbs 17:17
- How It will be very important for the actor to be very comfortable with what they are saying in order to portray the honesty of this skit.
- Time Approximately 5-7 minutes

The skit starts with Tina addressing the audience.

Tina: Isn't it amazing how one ordinary day could be the day that changes life as you know it? For me, when I think back to that day, it was as if God wanted to rewrite my script and change my direction forever. Change can be such an ugly word. If you're anything like me, you don't like change, but because of one special miracle and one little sentence, change doesn't seem as bad as it used to.

Before I get to that one little sentence let me say a little about growing up in my house. My name is Tina, and I can remember spending every single day as a kid at day care. I also can remember staying at the day care an hour later than anyone else because my parents were always late. That's the cause and effect when you have young, busy parents. My mom and dad were pretty young when I was born and never stopped working long enough to spend time with me... not real time anyway.

They never seemed to find any time for me, but they always seemed to have plenty of time for themselves. This is going to sound bad, but I just learned to never rely on them all that much. I was the only child and, yes, they made sure my needs were taken care of, but they also made it clear by their actions that they really had their own lives. Honestly, it was a great set-up. Well, until recently... I would hate to go back to that. I hardly ever saw them.

To read the rest of this script and perform it, download the full version at SkitGuys.com!

ENDING:

I've found another little sentence that is changing my heart and thinking. I was cleaning my room and I came across my Bible. I'll be honest with you, I haven't picked it up in a long time. I was flipping around and I came upon Proverbs 17:17 that says, "A friend loves at all times." Yes, it's time for change. It's time for me to be more open to love and not ignore my pain with liquor. It's time for me to let go of the past, and look at the future with hope. It's time for me to become a friend to my family, myself and other people God puts into my life.

I'm learning. It's slow. But you know what? Sometimes change can be good.

She exits. The end.